

Icy aftermath

Firemen rummaged through the ice-encrusted rubble of The Carnival, 905 South Limit, Thursday morning following an early-morning battle to extinguish the fire that destroyed the restaurant. The blaze reportedly started in the upstairs portion of the building about 2 a.m. and quickly spread to the rest of the building. By 4 a.m. the building had collapsed and firemen spent the rest of the night and most of Thursday morning extinguishing small, isolated fires that continued to burn in the debris. (See related photo on Page 4)

Pre-dawn blaze destroys restaurant on South Limit

Sedalia firemen were kept busy Wednesday night as they fought two fires over a four-hour period.

The most spectacular fire occurred at 1:52 a.m. when The Carnival, a restaurant at 905 South Limit, was totally destroyed by fire. Damage was estimated by Fire Chief Willis Jabas at approximately $150,000.

The fire, Jabas said, apparently started in the upper area of the two-story building but the cause is currently listed as "undetermined." The blaze quickly spread through the rest of the structure, leaving only two walls standing by daylight Thursday.

Owner Jim Mathewson, 237 Driftwood, reportedly received a call shortly before 2 a.m. advising him that the building was on fire. Mathewson rushed to the scene and was fighting the fire with a small extinguisher when firemen arrived.

A police officer at the scene told The Democrat-Capitol that dense smoke hampered firemen at the start and made it difficult for them to locate the fire. The officer said the smoke poured out of the building for a while before the flames seemed to "bust loose through" every window.

Firemen remained on the scene throughout the night and Thursday morning, extinguishing several small fires still to be found in the smoldering ruins. The firetrucks finally returned to their stations at 12:30 p.m. Thursday.

Neither Mathewson nor Earl Thomas, owner of the building, were available for comment Thursday morning, although it was reported that they were meeting with insurance representatives in an effort to evaluate the damage.

The Carnival was formerly LeRoy's Steak House, a favorite late-night meeting spot for area residents.

Mathewson operated LeRoy's for eight years before remodeling the building and opening The Carnival in early August of last year.

Firemen responded to an earlier call at the Auto-Teria Car Wash, 1703 West 16th, after burglars entered the business and apparently shorted out some wires while breaking into four coin boxes from which they took an undetermined amount of money.

Firemen responded to the call at about 9:30 p.m. and notified police of the break-in. Damage to the business was listed as $500 to the building and $1,000 to the contents. The value of the damaged coin boxes was set at $400.

Weather continues siege on Missouri and Kansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Light snow, sleet and freezing rain continued to pepper nearly all of Kansas and Missouri today, jamming traffic and closing schools.

The long siege of snow, ice and bitter cold, which began over the weekend between Christmas and New Year's, was forecast to continue at least through Saturday in Kansas and over the weekend in Missouri.

The storm had let up in northwest Kansas this morning, and heavy snow gave way to a light mixture of snow and sleet over most of the two states.

Two to eight inches of new snow fell in a wide belt across Kansas and Missouri Wednesday and through the night.

Southern Missouri had freezing rain and sleet instead of the snow.

The Kansas Highway Department

reported roads were normal only in the southwest part of the state. Highways were snow packed and icy in spots in northwest and north-central Kansas, and in the other areas they were covered and packed with snow.

That included the Kansas Turnpike between Kansas City and the Oklahoma line below Wichita and Interstate 70 across Kansas from Missouri to the Colorado line.

The Missouri Highway Patrol reported all major highways were ice and snow covered except in the extreme southeast corner of the state. Even there, roads were slushy and the bridges were icy.

An observer at the National Weather Service station in St. Louis called it the worst winter in 60 years.

Maryville in northwest Missouri had three inches of new snow, leaving it with nine inches on the ground. New snow at Moberly, Macon and elsewhere in north-central Missouri ran six and seven inches.

A heavy snow warning, with four inches or more at Moberly, Macon and elsewhere in north-central Missouri ran six and seven inches.

A heavy snow warning, with four inches or more a possibility, still was in effect for central and northeast Missouri today. An ice storm warning was posted for southeast Missouri, with the possibility of heavy damage to trees and utility lines.

Forecasters said there will be little change through Monday except for some slight moderation in daytime temperatures.

Missouri's overnight lows ranged from five above at Kirksville, St. Joseph and Kansas City in the north and west to 27 at Springfield and Cape Girardeau in the south.

National Weather Service forecasters predicted tonight's range will be from near zero in the northwest to the teens in the southeast, and highs on Friday will be from the teens in the north and west to the 20s in the southeast.

The long-range outlook is for an even colder Saturday but some slight moderation on Sunday and Monday.

weather

Travelers advisories this afternoon and tonight; intermittent freezing rain or sleet this afternoon, changing to snow tonight and diminishing to flurries early Friday; turning colder tonight and Friday; low tonight 5 to 10 above; winds northerly 8 to 15 mph; high on Friday in teens. The temperature Thursday was 11 at 7 a.m. and 15 at noon. Low Wednesday night was 3.

Lake of the Ozarks stage: 56.1; 3.9 feet below full reservoir. Sunset today will be at 6:10 p.m. Sunrise Friday at 8:31 a.m.

Bond warns against any major spending

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri legislators were asked by Gov. Christopher S. Bond today to keep close watch on the state's fiscal situation and not to pass any major spending programs.

The governor, in his annual legislative message, said in a joint session:

"Because of the energy crisis we face the possibility of a substantial downturn in our economy early in the next fiscal year.

"We are already operating at a $20 million deficit even if there is no downturn in the economy. The General Assembly thus cannot enact any major new spending programs from general revenue (state taxes) in this session."

The state still has a general revenue surplus, but spending is outrunning income, the governor has said.

The governor included an assessment of his first year in office and said no matter what is said about his administration, "I intend that my own conscience will always be able to say that the Bond administration is honest."

He continued:

"I ask the General Assembly, the press, and the public to hold me accountable. But in the end neither others nor even the law can assure personal integrity. That must come from within."

The Republican governor, beginning his second year in office after numerous spats with the Democratic controlled legislature, proposed a legislative package that included measures that failed last year.

"Our styles, our ages, our parties may differ," said the 34-year-old governor, the nation's youngest. "But each one of us has chosen public service. After a year in the governor's office, I am probably a little bit more experienced than I was a year ago—maybe a little bit different—I know a little bit wiser."

Among his priorities for the 1974 session are reorganization of state government, establishment of no-fault automobile insurance, reform of campaign spending laws, improving maternal and infant care, especially with regard to mental retardation, revising the criminal code to bring it up to date, setting up a drug investigation unit in the highway patrol, equalizing school district taxes and distribution of state aid to schools, adoption of a witness immunity law and ratification of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) to the U.S. Constitution.

The ERA failed in Missouri last year and has not received high priority among Senate and House leaders. A governor's aide said a poll by a St. Louis firm showed Missourians favor ratification of the ERA, to ensure equal rights for women, by a 2-to-1 margin.

Reorganization and campaign spending laws are progressing through the special session, which ends Feb. 2. Campaign spending also has been introduced in the regular session.

"I intend to work as hard and as well as I know how to see them (his proposals) adopted and to make them succeed," Bond said. "But I promise one thing only—the conscience to keep public trust from turning to private gain. That is the only way I know to make politics an honorable calling."

Bond did not attend dedication ceremonies Wednesday in the House chamber because he was not invited. No state officials were invited. About $120,000 in repairs were made in the House.

Chief Justice Robert Donnelly of the state Supreme Court was to follow Bond with a state of the judiciary message.

In action Wednesday, 618 prefiled House bills were read. About 200 Senate bills have been introduced for the regular session.

The Senate, which convened its regular session shortly after noon, got a few chuckles from a "night before Christmas" poem introduced as a resolution by Sen. Paul Bradshaw, R-Springfield.

Oil imports decrease more than one-third

WASHINGTON (AP) — Imports of crude oil to the United States last week were 1.6 million barrels per day lower than the level around the time the Arab oil embargo began.

For the week ending Jan. 4, the imports totaled 2.6 million barrels per day, according to statistics issued Wednesday by the American Petroleum Institute, an oil industry trade organization.

This compares to 4.2 million barrels a day for the week ending Nov. 2, just after the Arab oil embargo was announced.

However, imports of refined products, which are not covered by the Arab embargo, appear to be holding almost level since September.

This could mean that Arab oil was still reaching the United States through foreign refineries. If so, the impact of the embargo could be only about half of the 3.5 million barrels per day cut off that could result if finished products were withheld.

The weekly figures showed an increase of some 200,000 barrels per day from the import figures of a week earlier. This offered some hope that the slump in imports could be leveling out, but there was no way to know for sure.

The total oil made available daily during the four weeks ending Jan. 4 averaged slightly less than that of one year earlier, signaling a real oil shortage when compared with demand increases over the past year.

Meanwhile, the Federal Energy Office issued its own weekly analysis Thursday, indicating increased savings of fuel during the week which ended Dec. 28, one week before the latest oil institute figures.

The energy office said gasoline demand for the week ended Dec. 28 was 18.6 per cent lower than forecast, indicating a significant response to conservation measures.

For the preceding four weeks since Dec., gasoline demand averaged 8.7 lower than forecast, indicating savings of about 600,000 barrels per day.

For all four major products demand was about 13 per cent lower than previously forecast, the energy office said.

The analysis showed that the fuel savings were the only thing that managed to keep demand in line with decreasing oil supplies as the Arab cut-off continued to reduce oil imports during that week.

The oil institute statistics showed an upturn in imports last week.

Webster wants Missourians to entertain Fair visitors

Although later saying he came "well prepared" to defend his appropriations request before the Senate Appropriations Committee, State Fair Secretary Ron Jones Wednesday encountered some unexpected opposition from committee member Sen. Richard Webster (R-Carriage).

Webster criticized the long-standing Fair custom of employing "big-name" grandstand entertainment personalities from such locales as Nashville, New York and Hollywood.

"We have some of the best country and western and gospel, real folksingers, in Southwestern Missouri in the nation... that would fill the grandstand," Webster said.

The Southwest Missouri senator then attacked what he termed the "hellacious bill each year at the State Fair for country and western clowns from Nashville that can hardly carry a tune."

Webster also wanted to know "why we can't hire Missourians. When are we going to start supporting the state of Missouri instead of bringing in Hollywood clodhoppers? Let's use the taxpayers' money for the promotion of Missouri."

Sen. Richard Webster

Jones said he "was surprised but certainly not shattered" by Webster's statements.

"I tried to explain to him that we plan to provide entertainment for a wide variety of interests, not just one or two kinds," Jones said. "Maybe we could make money one night out of the Fair with Missouri country and bluegrass singers, but we probably couldn't every night. And, besides, this wouldn't be fair to those who enjoy other styles of musical entertainment."

"The funny thing about Senator Webster's statements," Jones continued "was that we didn't even have time left for much discussion of other facets of the budget such as plumbing and other fair improvements."

Despite Webster's remarks, the appropriations committee, overall, appeared receptive to most of the requests it heard Wednesday.

Jones requested $1,122,000 for the fair budget this year, a decrease of some

Truman Dam bids upcoming

(Democrat-Capitol Service)

WARSAW — Bids will be opened in April to begin work on the next to the last stage of construction on the Harry S. Truman Dam project here, it was announced Wednesday.

Lt. Col. James Peck, deputy district engineer for the Army at Kansas City, said the work, estimated to cost over $10 million, will involve the completion of the reservoir embankment project and power house construction.

Peck made the announcement in a speech to the Kansas Contractors Association at their annual meeting in Kansas City.

The embankment project, Peck told The Democrat-Capitol Thursday will consist of building up the dam with earth fills. The power house project, Peck said, will reflect "our work on the building which will be at the heart of the dam." The power house, he said, will be the site for all dam turbines, pumps and other power units.

Completion of the power house project, Peck said, is estimated for 1981, a year after the dam itself is scheduled to start backing up water.

Peck also announced that bids will be taken project for highways and railroads near the dam site.

Referring to the energy crisis, Peck urged the contractors to arrange for construction supplies as soon as possible. He also encouraged the use of substitute materials when feasible.

While Peck told the contractors that "we simply do not know what the situation is going to be regarding fuel for conservation," he said Thursday that the Truman Dam project "as of now has not been plagued with problems of this sort... it's the weather, more than anything else, that is slowing our work in Warsaw now."

Peck also noted that hydroelectric power projects, which the Truman project is, will have high priorities on fuel for construction.

In another announcement, Peck reported that bids will be opened soon for an improvements program at Whiteman AFB estimated to cost slightly under $5 million.

One segment of the improvements program, which he estimated may cost up to $5 million, will be installation of air conditioning and the construction of additional improvements in airmen barracks.

Weather conditions also affect police

According to Police Chief William Miller, the new snow accumulation and freezing rain has not seriously hampered police activities, although police response to calls may be slowed.

Miller said that three squad cars had become stuck between Wednesday night and Thursday morning, and required a tow truck to get them going again, but that all of the six squad cars were being equipped with chains Thursday morning. Before, only three of the cars were fitted with chains.

"The weather hasn't really hampered us," said Miller. "We're still responding to all calls but the people should understand that it will probably take a little longer to get there due to the heavy snow and icy conditions."

Miller said the number of accidents over the past few days have not been higher than normal.

"We're not having a lot of traffic accidents because people are staying in," Miller said. "They're not driving unless it's necessary and those that do drive are exercising extreme caution."

Police are still running emergency calls for people that are snowbound and can't get out, Miller said, but emphasized that the calls are taken only in an emergency situation in which the elderly or handicapped must have groceries or medicine and cannot get out.

"We're not buying their groceries or medicine," he stated, "but we'll get it for them if it's an emergency and they have no other means."

The barrage of ice, rain and snow caused injuries reported to the Bothwell Hospital emergency room to be "running a little more than usual," a hospital spokesman said.

"With this type of weather you always get some (patients) who have fallen on the ice," the spokesman said.

Local and area schools remained closed Thursday as snowfall played further havoc on streets and roads already ice-coated.

Numerous meetings and other activities scheduled for Thursday have been postponed in the wake of the winter storm. These include a Pettis County Red Cross meeting, which has been rescheduled for 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, and the Stover senior-high boys basketball tournament, which has been postponed to Friday night, weather permitting. Three games were scheduled to be played.

The Sedalia Jaycees annual Outstanding Young Man awards banquet, scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday at the Holiday Inn, has been postponed one week to 7 p.m. Jan. 17 at the same location.

The Sedalia Knife and Fork Club meeting, scheduled for Saturday, has been postponed indefinitely.

Course on veterinary diseases

(Democrat-Capital Service)

MARSHALL — A course in veterinary science dealing with diseases will be held Feb. 4, 11, 18 and 25 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Vocational-Technical School, Marshall.

Session one, taught by Dr. Rainey Robertson, DVM, Marshall, will deal with introduction to disease, bacteria, viruses and disease. Session two, taught by Dr. Lewis Bybee, DVM, Sweet Springs, will deal with internal and external parasites. The third session, taught by Dr. J. R. Randolph, DVM, Marshall, will deal with nutrition, poisons and disease. The last session, taught by Dr. Glen Patterson, DVM, Hale, Mo., will deal with stress, heredity and disease. Dr. Patterson is a federal veterinarian.

High school students are desired for the course but parents and other adults are welcome. The course is offered free of charge.

Sign up in advance by calling the Saline County Extension Office, 816-886-6908, or by mailing a card to Box 219, Marshall, Mo. 65340.

Eagleton to visit Boonville, Sweet Springs

(Democrat-Capital Service)

SWEET SPRINGS — Missouri Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton will be in Sweet Springs Jan. 18 as part of a "10-day swing" throughout the state "to sound out the attitudes of Missourians."

He will visit 13 cities during the 10 days.

Eagleton's regional press briefing in Sweet Springs will be at 9 a.m. at the V Restaurant, Highway 127 and old U.S. Highway 40.

Eagleton also will be in Boonville next Thursday to address the Boonville Jaycee's annual boss's night banquet at the Boonville Rod and Gun Club. The dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Accidental shooting is result of fall

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Police said a city fire dispatcher slipped on an icy sidewalk and was killed Wednesday night when a revolver in his pocket went off as he fell.

Edging fell as he left a south-side restaurant to walk to his home nearby. He had his hands in his coat pocket and apparently was clutching his service revolver.

Low blood pressure

DEAR DR. LAMB — I notice you write often about high blood pressure, but no information on low blood pressure. My blood pressure is 118-60. I'm 61 years old, five-five, and weigh 91 pounds. Isn't that pretty low pressure?

I have peptic ulcers and take Soma compounds, Donnitol and Titrilac antacid four times a day.

Isn't there something I should be taking for low blood pressure? I'm getting dizzy spells for some reason and thought the pressure might be the cause.

DEAR READER — That is not an unusual pressure for a small woman like you. The important question is, what is causing your dizziness? There are many causes for dizziness, and it is true that inadequate circulation to the brain in one. It is also true that medicines can be a cause. First on my list of causes for your problem is the Soma compound you are taking.

Soma is a good medicine. It will relax muscle spasms and is commonly used for patients with your problems. However, rarely it will cause dizziness.

You may well be one of the rare individuals in whom this occurs. You should go see your doctor, and I would suggest that the first thing to try would be to stop the Soma compound. If it doesn't correct the problem, he will want to check other possibilities for dizziness.

For those few individuals who have dizziness related to low blood pressure, some pressure stockings are helpful. The elastic-like pressure helps to prevent too much blood accumulating in the legs and in this way helps maintain good circulation to the brain.

Before you get too worried about your blood pressure, I must tell you my pressure is commonly lower than yours. Some people claim I'm dizzy, but I haven't felt any dizzy spells yet.

Trend toward warmer, drier weather

ST. LOUIS (AP) — As the snow, sleet and freezing rain continue to swirl around Missouri during the third major storm of the winter, an early January thaw and a long-range trend toward warmer and drier weather has been predicted by a meteorology professor at Boston College in Massachusetts.

Dr. Edward M. Brooks, a former St. Louis University geophysicist, said Wednesday that his outlook for the state and the rest of the nation east of the Rockies is "very optimistic."

In a telephone interview with the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Brooks said sunspot activity, on which he bases his forecasts, is waning, and by spring the new warmer, drier pattern should be established and last through the rest of the year.

Sunspot activity usually runs in 11-year cycles, he noted, and the maximum activity during this cycle was recorded in 1968-1969.

"The period of high activity is now about over and the severe winter weather of recent weeks is something of 'a last gasp,'" Brooks said.

"Usually the change is sudden rather than gradual with very cold, wet weather quickly changing to the opposite conditions," he explained.

"You normally get a January thaw about the 19th or 20th, but I think it will come sooner, within a week or so, when there should be melting of snow and ice and an improvement in temperatures for a longer period of time."

Brooks also noted that since there is usually not enough cold air to cover the entire country at one time the fact that the West Coast is currently experiencing extreme cold weather indicates that temperatures will be warmer east of the Rockies.

The first city in the United States to turn to the ocean for its regular supply of fresh water is Key West, Fla., which desalts the sea water.

Amendment on abortion ruling meeting topic

JEFFERSON CITY — In an effort to reverse last year's U.S. Supreme Court abortion decision by means of a human life amendment to the U.S. Constitution, several Central Missouri chapters of Missouri Citizens for Life will meet here Jan. 30 to combine and strengthen their efforts.

Missouri Citizens for Life is described as a statewide non-profit, non-sectarian pro-life organization designed to promote and foster positive and constructive answers to the social problems related to pregnancy.

The name of the new coalition will be the MCL Mid-State chapter, comprising residents and local Missouri Citizens for Life chapters from the following counties: Pettis, Cole, Osage, Calloway, Boone, Howard, Saline, Morgan, Moniteau, Miller, Maries, Cooper, Phelps, Benton, Johnson, and Gasconade.

WHICH COSTS MORE? ONE DAY'S ELECTRICITY OR A HALF-GALLON OF MILK.

Prices have gone up on many goods. And it becomes a serious question for a family to consider what's a good value. And what's not.

One day's electricity for the average family* costs about the same as a half-gallon of milk. Or a little less. Surprised? You shouldn't be. Electrical power is one of the best buys in your budget.

Think of all the conveniences you enjoy that require electricity. Lights. Refrigerator. Washer and dryer. Stove. Television. Air conditioning. What can you add? Even the electricity is a necessity, it's good to know it is still a mighty good buy.

POWER FOR THE PEOPLE

Scientist favors daylight time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Daylight Saving Time will save energy even if people turn on as many lights to brush their teeth in the morning as they did to down their martinis at night, says a government scientist.

It also could provide bonus benefits by giving people a better chance to safely reach their home after work, says Dr. Douglas Bauer.

Bauer, deputy assistant director of research for the Office of Energy Conservation, says daylight time could cut the nation's demand for heat and electricity by anywhere from one to three per cent.

It saved an estimated 700,000 tons of coal annually during World War II, according to the Edison Electric Institute of New York City. The Nixon administration estimates it could save 150,000 barrels of oil a day this winter.

Bauer says daylight time can save energy because the nation's demand for energy does not stay constant — it hits peaks and valleys during a 24-hour cycle.

He said one peak comes during the late afternoon, while a valley usually occurs in the morning hours.

Utility companies normally use their most efficient generators as much as possible while retaining their least efficient generators only to boost power during the peak periods, Bauer said.

Thus, by shifting an hour of daylight to the evening, daylight time cuts down the need for electricity during a peak period, and lessens the likelihood that the less efficient generators will be needed.

Dr. Bauer also says he feels people will use less electricity in the morning hour of darkness than they did at night.

"In the morning, in most parts of the country, it's already dark (when people arise), so you've already got lights on," he said.

And he says daylight time also will give people a better chance of getting safely to and from work since they will have more light at a time when many of them are tired and some have had a few drinks.

Londoners boiling as strikes slow down city

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

LONDON (AP) — "And some call this the most civilized city in the world," sneered George, the barman at Waterloo Station.

He was looking out at a mob of commuters storming the gates of the 5-42 to Guildford, already an hour late.

They stampeded across the great vaulted terminal like a nightmare backfield in motion at some super Super Bowl Game, then reversed their field when the train caller rasped out an alternate choice: "The train now standing on platform 13 is the 1705 to Exeter... four coaches only."

Two helmeted bobbies cut off the surging crowd by clanging the gates shut. A rejected banker-type came to a boil under his bowler and uttered a rare obscenity at a passing trainman, reflecting the growing hostility of the passengers against the month-old go-slow of the Locomotive Engineers' Union.

Wednesday only 45 of the 375 commuter trains scheduled for Southern Region, which serves the stockbroker belt, ran because of the wage dispute.

"We're only working three days a week because of the power cuts and it takes me nearly that long to get up and back from Chertsey," Bowler Hat told the barman. "By the time I get home, the telly's gone off."

George indulged in London's latest conversational fad by matching him woe for woe: "Took me three hours last night and I work for the bleeding railroad. There wasn't a coathanger in the cab or some such nonsense, so the driver wouldn't take the train out."

Behind the city's — and the nation's — woes are labor disputes. The most important is the refusal of miners' to work overtime until they get pay hikes. This has cut down on Britain's supply of coal on which it depends for most of its energy.

The cut in coal production is compounded by the locomotive men's go-slow, which has hit delivery of coal. All this led to the government putting the nation on a three-day work week to conserve energy.

But all over London, people were coping as much as they were complaining, daring to go to the theater in spite of the threat of bombs by Irish terrorists, shopping by gaslight in the great post-Christmas sales and running out in the street to see what they had bought.

In the winter gloom of the new gaslight era, camp suppliers were enjoying a bonanza selling butane lamps and stoves by the gross to shops and banks. Factories were resurrounding old steam generators, and a Battersea candlestick maker was turning out a million candles a day instead of his normal 250,000. His most popular item was a wax effigy of Prime Minister Edward Heath that burns for a week.

With steel production down by half because of the energy crisis, Britain's big automotive industry faced massive layoffs, but pickpockets on the crowded railroad platforms and shoplifters in the darkened stores never had it so good.

"They're stealing us blind here," confided Katy Loughern from the depths of a King's Road boutique. "It's so dark, the closed circuit TV can't see a thing."

Skylab astronauts seek untapped energy sources

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Observations of the earth and sun by the Skylab 3 astronauts might discover untapped sources of energy for a power-hungry globe.

They are searching for petroleum deposits and sources of geothermal energy in many countries. From the sun they seek secrets of thermonuclear fusion, which could lead to an endless, pollution-free power.

Although today was scheduled as a day off in space, astronauts Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson scheduled time to view the sun through Skylab's powerful telescope cameras. They were in the 56th day of the planned 84-day mission.

With solar physicist Gibson handling most of the sun studies, the astronauts have snapped thousands of solar photos, capturing both quiet periods and active periods when sunspots and small flares have burst on the surface.

The sun produces energy through thermonuclear fusion, a technique scientists on earth are working to perfect.

The goal is to harness the hydrogen bomb reaction to generate power by fusion, eliminating the present process which requires the triggering of an atomic fission bomb to detonate the fusion bomb. It is the fission bomb which produces radiation.

Fission produces energy by splitting molecules while fusion produces it by compressing them.

Thermonuclear fusion, believed to be at least 30 to 40 years from development in the United States, would use lithium and deuterium which are in such abundance on earth that they would last millions of years.

"The basic problem in research to develop controlled nuclear fusion is that of keeping the extremely hot plasma in one place long enough to produce the reaction," Gibson explained before the flight. "This is done successfully in only one place I know of, and that's on the sun."

"If we can learn the basic high energy physics of how the sun not only creates energy but also how it transfers it, we might start getting the answer," he said. "We might be able to cut 10 years off the development time of fusion reaction."

As part of their earth resources surveys, the Skylab astronauts have aimed cameras and sensors at potential petroleum-bearing areas in the United States, South America, Africa and the Far East. Radar imagery may reveal broad gentle geologic fields that commonly serve as reservoirs for petroleum. Some U.S. oil companies are using data obtained by the first two Skylab crews to aid in oil exploration.

Recall of mushrooms is ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has ordered withdrawal from the market several brands of 16-ounce size canned mushrooms it says could be tainted with lethal botulinum toxin.

The toxin can cause deadly botulism poisoning if victims are not treated promptly.

The recall, announced Wednesday, includes mushrooms packed before May 10, 1972, under the Colonial Farms or Star Chef brands, both produced by the Oxford Corp. of Oxford, Pa.

The FDA said also being recalled are mushrooms processed by Oxford for 18 private labels. However, it said most of the suspect cans were marketed under the Colonial Farms and Star Chef brands.

It is the second recall of canned mushrooms announced within a week.

The 16-ounce cans are generally sold to institutions and restaurants but some have been purchased by individual consumers for home use, the FDA said.

Recalled cans bear a one-line identification code on the can lid or a two-line code with the top line ending in "2" and preceded by numbers from 1 through 129, said the FDA.

Kohoutek yet may be 'comet of century'

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A leading comet expert says the comet Kohoutek still could be the "comet of the century" to scientists.

While early predictions of a spectacular sight on the horizon will not materialize, Dr. Brian Marsden of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said Wednesday that Kohoutek's behavior is not any more unpredictable than other comets.

"Kohoutek is a better than average comet," Dr. Marsden said. "But there is just an awful lot we don't know about these things."

"We never had a case like this of a comet which came in so close to the sun being discovered so far out in space as this one, and this presented many interesting possibilities about what it could do," he said.

Comet Kohoutek was discovered March 7 of last year by Dr. Lubos Kohoutek, an astronomer in Hamburg, West Germany. Dr. Marsden said ordinarily the comet probably would not have been discovered until October, and it would not have attracted so much attention.

"But because it was discovered so early, scientists could prepare, and speaking as an astronomer, I'm delighted at the scientific observations made. No comet has been studied as extensively as this one and what is learned should be incredible," Dr. Marsden said.

As to Kohoutek's dimness, Dr. Marsden said comets are extremely unpredictable objects which can suddenly grow brighter or dimmer, burn out completely or even split into two or more other comets.

Recent studies of new comets show that they often appear brightly at a distance from the sun but when they loop around for a return orbit, they are dimmer.

"We feel that there may be a volatile substance on the outside of the comet head which is lost on the first pass, leaving just water, ice and other material which doesn't vaporize as easily," Dr. Marsden said. It is the vapor reflecting light that is seen in the sky, and Kohoutek could have lost its vaporizing substance passing the sun.

This kind of optical illusion could have made the comet seem bigger than it turned out to be. Combined with its early discovery, this led to some initial predictions which later had to be toned down, Dr. Marsden said.

Speed limit, campaign bills are approved by committees

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Committees of the Missouri House and Senate have approved bills to give enforcement power to the secretary of state for campaign finance reporting and to allow the governor to set new speed limits to comply with federal law.

The House Elections Committee approved a substitute bill which was drafted after the committee heard testimony on three special session campaign financing bills last month.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond had favored a measure which would have established an elections commission to control reporting of campaign contributions and expenditures.

Charles Valier, the governor's administrative assistant, said "We don't like it of course. Who's going to investigate the report of the secretary of state?"

Rep. Buddy Kay, D-St. Louis, gained approval for an amendment which changes a part of the act which exempted a complete listing of names and addresses of persons who contribute $5 or less to a candidate. The amendment would allow exemption of names and addresses of individuals contributing $50 or less.

Rep. Vic Downing, D-Bragg City, chairman of the Elections Committee, said he felt the exemption was too high. He said it was a result of a compromise to remove objections of some members of the committee about the low amount exempted from reporting provisions.

Downing added however, that he felt the measure was a good bill because it represented work by James Dowd, assistant to the secretary of state; Charles Valier, the governor's administrative assistant; Rep. Ed Bohl, R-Harrisonville; and Rep. Max Bacon, D-Springfield.

Downing defended the provision of the bill that gives the secretary of state power to enforce the measure. James C. Kirkpatrick, a Democrat, is now secretary of state and will be when elections are held later this year and in 1976.

"I think the secretary of state will enforce it... he knows the people will be watching," Downing said. "You can have politics in a commission as well."

The legislation would require political campaign treasurers to report contributions to the secretary of state. Present law allows too many loopholes in reporting, critics say.

Earlier, the Senate Roads and Highways Committee approved legislation to authorize the governor to set state speed limits at not less than federal speed standards.

Senate action is not expected to come this week, Committee Chairman Jack Gant, D-Independence, said.

An anti-busing amendment by Sen. Earl Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, was tacked onto the bill. The amendment would prohibit busing across state lines solely to achieve racial balance.

Blackwell said the amendment was to stop cross-district busing for racial reasons. His amendment passed on a 4-0 vote.

Gant offered the amendment that would set a speed limit at whatever a federal limit, which is now 55 miles per hour, would be.

He said he did not want the governor to set the limit below federal standards.

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — An elderly man has become the first fatality that authorities in the St. Louis area have directly attributed to the current winter storm.

Charles Baur, 82, of Belleville, Ill., died Wednesday at a local hospital after suffering a fractured skull when he fell on an ice-covered sidewalk a day earlier, authorities said.

Popular Bluff woman writing for television

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Mary Kay Place is a young woman who thinks she turned up in television work at the right time.

"This is the year for women writers for television," Miss Place said here on a visit. "We just lucked into it at the right time."

"We" means Miss Place and Linda Bloodworth, a native of Poplar Bluff, Mo. The two are writing television scripts in Hollywood and making their marks.

Their credits aren't bad for a couple of young women, particularly for one who was a teacher and the other who wants to act.

Miss Place, the daughter of Brad Place, chairman of the University of Tulsa art department, explained their breaks.

She had been in Hollywood about five years. She worked in the offices of CBS-TV, as secretary for Tim Conway and last season as writers' secretary and production assistant for Tandem Productions on "Maude."

The season with "Maude" was "like a masters' degree, like going to college all over again," she said.

When the season was completed in March she quit Tandem Productions. "I wanted to try acting and writing. I called my partner, Linda, the only really funny girl I had met. She was teaching journalism and English in a high school in Watts."

The first thing they did was a script on speculation for "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

"The literary agency we took it to, Robinson-Weintraub, loved it and signed us although the script didn't sell because Mary Tyler Moore already had a similar script on hand."

Then, on assignment, they prepared some material for a record album for Lily Tomlin. Those are still unrecorded but they sold.

Next they worked on a special, "The Shape of Things." Following that they sold a script for "M-A-S-H" and became the first and only women to write for that series.

In July they were signed by Warner Brothers to write a pilot script for a new television series. The pilot was sent to CBS-TV and is still in the running for use in 1974-75.

They will also do another script for "M-A-S-H" in the next season.

With a history of success and an agency, they expect to stay as busy as they want in the near future. Miss Place still wants to act and has acquired an agent for doing commercials.

Manufacturers join move to Washington

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Association of Manufacturers has moved its headquarters to Washington, joining a procession of business groups that have departed New York over the past decade to be nearer the power center.

Known by various names — societies, associations, institutes, among the more popular — these groups seem to be saying that the shots are being called by government now more so than by private enterprise.

To an extent, of course, they are correct. Increasingly they have found themselves on the Metroliner or the air shuttle to Washington to testify, defend, promote, plead, threaten, demand their way. It has become a way of life.

The watershed has long been taking shape. The consumer movement speeded the process, but it is still debatable whether more power flows to Washington than here. But in moving, the associations suggest a trend.

Prominent among the movers in the past few years are the American Gas Association, which represents manufacturers, transporters and distributors, and the American Petroleum Institute, which represents refiners and others.

Ecological considerations gave a tremendous thrust to the trend when business conceded that without federal standards it could hardly justify the big expenditures needed to clean water, air and other elements of environment.

Few planning decisions are possible in many large corporations now without taking in the federal government as a partner. And sometimes the partner exerts more power than the company's own officers.

The onset of chronic inflation during the latter half of the 1960s led eventually to further government intervention in the market place when the Nixon administration decided that controls were necessary.

While these controls repeatedly have been called temporary, and plans for their demise have constantly been talked about, many businessmen really don't expect complete government withdrawal ever.

In fact, a new pricing ethic may be developing to prolong inflation and the government's presence in the pricing mechanism, an ethic that encourages a company to raise prices as high as the government will permit.

Shortages have added to the inflation problem and to Washington's involvement. The allocation of resources in an economy of shortages simply cannot be left to chance. Government, it is widely agreed, must be the referee.

And finally, industry inadequacies in the face of changing conditions, clearly illustrated by the experience of the securities industry, has made government intervention almost a necessity for the public's sake.

Complaints make husband move out

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I have been married for 35 years. We slept together in a standard-size bed until five years ago. I moved to the spare room after being badgered with the following complaints:

"Turn your head. You are breathing in my face."

"Move on your side. Your snoring is keeping me awake."

"Your feet are cold. Get them away."

"Slide over to your side of the bed. I'm about to fall off."

"Give me some covers. Last night I darn near froze to death and woke up with a sore throat."

"Stop moving. You've awakened me twice already."

I must say I have enjoyed sleeping in a bed myself these past five years. Yesterday my wife asked me to return to the old arrangement. What should I say? — New York Reader

Dear New York: Tell her it's a great place to visit but you don't want to live there. Then prove it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 20-year-old girl who just about awakened me twice already. I have been reading those letters from women who are trying to lose weight. I'm 5'5", have weighed 103 pounds for the last four years and would give anything if I could put on 10 pounds.

I've gone to three different doctors and they all say I'm in good health and not to worry. One doctor said I'd probably put on weight after I had a few babies. Another said it would surely happen after the menopause. But I don't want to wait that long. I want to look like a woman now.

Please check with some authorities and come up with some words of encouragement for this. — Rag, Bone And Hank Of Hair.

Dear Friend: Sorry, but Dr. Jean Mayer, a Harvard nutritionist and top authority in the field, says most thin people inherit their frames and it's hopeless to try to fatten them up. They simply lack the "storage vaults" for fat. These people often try to stuff themselves and sometimes get ill in the process but it doesn't do any good.

My advice to you, and to others who are fighting the same battle, is to concentrate on good posture, stay away from clinging fabrics and tight-fitting clothes, and don't hesitate to use a little padding here and there, especially there.

Dear Ann Landers: Throughout my long adult life I have collected a lot of Oriental art. Occasionally I will buy a modern piece that appears old just because I like its form, color or texture.

My problem is this: What do I say when someone greatly admires one of my nongenuine pieces? Do I keep quiet or do I say: "They are selling these by the dozen downtown."

I want to be honest, but I don't want to insult people by implying they are so stupid that they don't know the real thing from the phony. — West Coast Art Addict.

Dear West: I see no reason to tell people more than they want to know. When someone admires your collection, simply say, "Thank you." If the direct question is asked, "Is this piece authentic?" you should, of course, tell the truth.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 35 cents in coin to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

WORLD ALMANAC
FACTS

In 1972, the American Kennel Club registered a record 1,101,943 pure-bred dogs, of 120 different breeds. The World Almanac says. The most popular breeds were: poodles, 218,899; German shepherds, 101,399; beagles, 57,050; dachshunds, 55,149; Irish setters, 43,707; miniature schnauzers, 43,280; St. Bernards, 35,559; Labrador retrievers, 32,251; collies, 28,459; and doberman pinschers, 27,767.

WASHINGTON — The Ripoff Oil Co. was worried. A meeting of the executive committee was called at a duck shoot club in South Carolina to discuss ways and means of combating the bad publicity petroleum companies were getting over the energy crisis.

Harlan Mudbank, president of Ripoff, presented the problem.

Buchwald

"Gentlemen, I am sorry to say that the oil companies have a very bad image because of the fuel shortage that unfortunately has gripped the country in the last six months. The purpose of this meeting is to find a way to tell our story to the American people. Are there any suggestions?"

Willbank, the advertising vice president, said, "Why don't we launch a national advertising campaign to show that in spite of the crisis, Ripoff is keeping its prices down?"

"Excellent," said Mudbank, "but where do we get the money to pay for the campaign?"

Willbank replied, "By raising the price of our gasoline a penny a gallon."

Mudbank smiled. "Good thinking. If there are no objections the proposal is accepted. Are there any other ideas?"

Marvin Snowbank, vice president in charge of public affairs, said, "It seems to me the key to a good image is Congress. We must persuade our lawmakers that we are doing the best we can to provide the necessary fuel at reasonable cost to the consumer."

"How do we do this?"

Snowbank opened his folder. "By contributing to the political campaigns of EVERYONE running for office in 1974."

"But," said Mudbank, "that would cost us a fortune."

Snowbank read from a paper. "Our Washington lobbyists believe we can do it by adding only two cents to what we are now charging for a gallon of gas."

"It doesn't seem to be out of line," the comptroller said. "It cost us a cent a gallon just to elect Nixon. For two cents a gallon we're getting an entire Congress."

"Good," said Mudbank. "We seem to be making progress. What else can we do to win the hearts and minds of the American people?"

Rineholt Sandbank, the vice president for financial affairs, said, "One of the things that seems to be bugging the American people is our profit picture. I estimate we stand to make 160 per cent profit after taxes this year. We must persuade the country that these profits are within the cost-of-living guidelines."

"How?" Mudbank asked.

"By distributing American flag pins for every customer's lapel. I can't conceive of anyone questioning our profits if we give them a free American flag."

"Those lapel flags aren't cheap," the comptroller protested.

"Well pass on the cost of them to the customer. Three cents a gallon is a small price to pay for the privilege of wearing Old Glory," said Sandbank.

No objection was raised and Mudbank continued.

"While we're at it, I'd like to bring up another problem. No one is certain how long this energy crisis will last. There may come a day when new sources of energy will be found. It is even possible that someone will develop an automobile that doesn't use gasoline. In 20 years this could put us in a terrible profit squeeze. We can't wait until it happens. We must prepare for it now. What do we do?"

The vice president for financial affairs said, "It's obvious. We charge an extra nickel a gallon which we'll invest in tax-free bonds. No one can object to our ensuring ourselves against future unfair competition."

Mudbank seemed very pleased. "This has been a most successful meeting. Now let's all go out and shoot some ducks."

A conservative view

Lawyers: time to specialize

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger not long ago threw the weight of his experience and his office behind an idea whose time has clearly come. The idea is to create a system for training and certifying a new school of trial lawyers who would become, in effect, the barristers of the American bar.

Kilpatrick

The idea, of course, is not new. England historically has divided her legal practitioners into solicitors and barristers. The former undertake an immense variety of legal tasks, but their work is done back in the office; the latter specialize in one task only: They go to court for the actual trial of cases. Here in the United States, leading members of the bar for many years have urged some adaptation of the British system to our own law. The American Bar Association has a Special Committee on Specialization working on the problems. Several states, notably California and Texas, have launched experimental programs toward this end. In November, California awarded nearly 1,200 certificates of specialization in taxation, criminal law, and workmen's compensation.

Burger's idea is to concentrate first of all upon trial lawyers as such. In his address of Nov. 26 at the Fordham Law School, he made a number of cogent observations, and he developed a couple of pointed analogies. Every person who is graduated from a flying school is by definition a pilot; every student who emerges from medical school is by definition a doctor. But society prudently has decreed that not every pilot is qualified to fly a four-engine jet, and not every doctor is qualified to transplant a kidney. By the same token, Burger insists, it is folly to suppose that every law school graduate automatically is qualified to go into court and try a civil or criminal case.

Newspaper reporters who cover the trial courts surely would concur in Burger's opinion on "the low state of American trial advocacy." Every experienced reporter, sitting mute at the press table, has groaned inwardly at the ineptitude of courtroom amateurs who make a hundred immaterial objections and fail to ask the two or three key questions. In the criminal courts, it is by no means unusual for both the government and the defense to launch into trial with only the most foggy notion of what the case is all about.

The British do it better. Of their 30,000 lawyers, about 3,000 are barristers. They are specially trained, first in law school and then in a period of pupillage, for the difficult and demanding business of actual trial. An American who visits the Inns of Court, and sees the barristers in action, comes away with an envious impression of trial practice at its best. These advocates go at their work with deference and civility, but one ought not to be deceived by the respectful yes, m'lord, and no, m'lord; beneath the ribboned perukes are keen minds, honed for skilled shaping of the case at hand.

Burger does not recommend adoption of the British system as such. Our country is too large, and the rules of state and federal practice too diverse, for the system to be applied here. But he does urge that law students, after completion of their second year, be permitted to pursue trial practice as a specialty; and he proposes that state bars, courts and law schools unite in "prompt and concrete steps" toward the certification of trial lawyers.

As things stand now, in Burger's view, "we are more casual about qualifying the people we allow to act as advocates in the courtrooms than we are about licensing our electricians." If we are prepared to agree that liberty and property are at least as important as light bulbs, we ought as laymen to support this sensible certification plan.

Economic developer:
a curious history

A director of economic development for Sedalia appears to be a dead issue at the moment. But in reviewing recent events concerning the office, one cannot help but be struck by the many inconsistencies.

At its Nov. 5 meeting, the City Council split, mainly along party lines, as to whether a replacement for Bill Hall should be hired. A decision on letting the Economic Development Board proceed with interviews was postponed until the Nov. 19 meeting.

Then, at that meeting, several Democratic councilmen changed signals, voting 6-1 to hold interviews. Only Councilman Carl Franklin has maintained consistent opposition to the matter, stating that he is against hiring a man because of the energy question.

The Economic Development Board proceeded with its interviews, and on Dec. 13 reached a unanimous decision on one applicant. Among those so voting was member Raymond Bales, who had also voted with the City Council majority on Nov. 19 to hold the interviews.

Last Monday, the City Council voted 5-3 against hiring the applicant recommended for the job by the non-partisan Economic Development Board. Councilman Bales, and some of his colleagues who had originally voted to hold interviews, fell back into the "no" column.

All of this means that the board expended a great deal of time and effort for nought, after receiving the council's implied consent that a qualified applicant would be hired. The applicants themselves certainly were inconvenienced, especially those from out of town.

After the council's Monday night vote, one member of the economic board, who had argued earlier before the council as to the need for filling the position, asked what the board should do now. It would appear to be something of a useless appendage without a director to carry out its wishes.

The fact is, political considerations have played a major part in the council's on-again, off-again approach to the economic developer position. We hope that the job eventually will be filled in a manner that asks only what is best for Sedalia.

U.S. oil combine backed Arab hikes

information about the dimensions of the crisis.

Now, we have developed our own sources inside Aramco who have access to its most secret files. Admittedly, they have been able to give us only a limited view into the backrooms of the great oil consortium. Many of the documents are also highly technical and, therefore, difficult for laymen to understand.

To protect our sources, we have agreed not to quote directly from the documents. We read carefully selected excerpts to an Aramco spokesman, who disputed the contents. "A lot of people within the company write memos," he said. "This doesn't mean everything they write is correct."

Nevertheless, the confidential memos, supported by tables giving the "rate of return" at various price levels, show that the company early last year was quietly agitating for higher prices.

The documents also show that the company later became alarmed over the greed of the oil producers. In fairness, the press for extortionary prices came more from Saudi Arabia's neighbors than from the Saudis.

Aramco sent a delegation, headed by George Piercey, a senior Exxon vice president, to urge Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani last fall to hold down the price demands. "We were trying," an Aramco spokesman told us, quite accurately, "to keep prices from going crazy."

But Aramco's only concern, judging from the documents, was to prevent political repercussions in the West. Earlier, the company had helped to stimulate a price increase.

The production costs for a 42-gallon barrel of Saudi oil averages only a trifling 12 cents. In contrast, the posted price finally hit $11.65 a barrel on Jan. 1. This is a fictitious price, which the oil nations use to calculate taxes and royalties. The actual price for a barrel of crude, upon arrival in America, is closer to $9.

Aramco's confidential price-and-profit tables are based on complex calculations. But they can be reduced to this simplicity: The company winds up with a percentage of the price rise. Therefore, the higher the prices, the higher are Aramco's profits.

One reason for this is that the company can charge off the royalties and taxes it pays to Saudi Arabia, dollar for dollar, against its U.S. taxes. This lovely loophole leaves the four members of the consortium with a U.S. tax debt next to nothing.

In 1972, Exxon, with a 6.5 per cent tax rate, paid the most. Mobil paid only 1.3 per cent. Standard of California, 2.05; and Texaco, 1.7. Other U.S. corporations pay around 50 per cent.

Now, Saudi Arabia has increased Aramco's tax benefits by raising the royalties from about $3 to $7 per barrel.

The confidential tables also indicate that Aramco gets a pay-back from Saudi Arabia for its technical help in developing new industries, such as salt production. The tables aren't clear, but it appears that the proportion of the pay-back increases as the price of oil goes up.

In short, the secret documents reveal that the four Aramco partners are making a profit off the price increase. Only their customers are hurting.

FOOTNOTE: The documents show that Aramco is changing its economic base. Because the Saudis are expected to take over the oil at the well-head, the company is preparing to take its profits from refining and marketing. In the past, it has been the other way around.

Casserole warms up ice skaters

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When young people invite a group of friends for supper after ice skating, what to feed them? One suggestion: a casserole concocted from two cans of pork and beans makes a feast! This casserole has captivating seasoning and the sweetness that's popular in such a dish. A tossed green salad or cold slaw with a tangy dressing goes well with it and dessert can be fruit and cookies. To enlarge this menu, serve fish chowder with crusty bread as a first course.

BAKED BEAN CASSEROLE

Two 28-ounce cans pork and beans in tomato sauce
1/2 pound bacon, cut in 1-inch pieces
2 medium onions, coarsely chopped
2 green peppers, seeded and coarsely chopped
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 cup catchup
1 cup dark corn syrup

In a 3-quart casserole stir together all the ingredients. Bake uncovered in a preheated 325-degree oven, stirring occasionally, for 3 1/2 hours. Makes 16 servings.

Partners for Progress will meet

Partners For Progress, a newly formed organization of north side citizens, will hold its regular business meeting at 6 p.m. Saturday at Taylor Chapel United Methodist Church, Pettis and Lamine.

Dr. Steve Laslo will be the guest speaker at 7:30 p.m. He will explain the services of WESCEMNO, a children's health project serving west central Missouri.

Partners for Progress is dedicated to promoting progress of blacks in education, employment, housing, human rights, public relations and recreation.

Officers are Mrs. Alyce Williams, chairperson; Mrs. Deloris City, vice chairperson; Mrs. Linda Clark, secretary; Mrs. Sharon Johnson, assistant secretary; and Charles Smith, treasurer.

Wins dollar

Mrs. Gleen Deffenbaugh, Versailles, recently was awarded a "Polly Dollar" for a suggestion she submitted to the "Polly's Pointers" column which appears daily in The Democrat and Capital.

Mid-Mo Cancellation

The Mid-Missouri Association of the Blind and Physically Handicapped will not meet this month due to the weather.

Social calendar

FRIDAY
Sedalia Garden and Study Club will meet at 1:00 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Dan Robinson, 1701 West 10th.

Will floor job finish finisher?

BY POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I have an "electronic" oven and my Pet Peeve is with the scarcity of recipes adapted for such cooking. One flour company is printing such recipes and I am sure many of us would like to see more. The sales of such ovens seem to be booming because of the energy crisis so the need is now more widespread. — MRS. M.J.A.

DEAR POLLY — Marie can get all the salad dressing out of a tall bottle. Being sure the lid is on tight and then stand the bottle upside down in a flat dish. After the dressing has drained down open the lid slowly and it will empty out into the dish. I do the same with catsup bottles. — VERA

DEAR GIRLS — I hold such a bottle under the hot water tap and let very hot water run over the lower part of the bottle for a few seconds. This is also good to do if dressing has been stored in the refrigerator. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — Recently when my small son had a birthday party we were concerned that children of his age might have trouble locating which house on the street was the "party house" so we tied a clump of bright balloons to the front door. No mistaking which house was having the party. — DORIS.

DEAR POLLY — A free-lance artist once gave me the following Pointer: If you do your own picture framing and want to put paper across the back a good tip is to wet the paper with a damp cloth or moistened sponge. Durable brown wrapping paper attached to the back of the frame with white glue is best. The result of the dampening will be a magical removal of any wrinkles in the paper which will be smooth and tight after it dries. — ERWIN.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — The hardwood floors in our home have been sanded several times and now need to be refinished again. I would like to know if any readers have ever used varnish remover to remove the finish from floors and if this would be a more difficult job than refinishing furniture? — MRS. J.B.

SHOP ROTH'S AND SAVE

Veteran vs. rookie

It'll be veteran Larry Csonka (left) of the Miami Dolphins against rookie Chuck Foreman of the Minnesota Vikings in Sunday's Super Bowl in Houston. Both are the prime running backs for their respective teams. (UPI)

Statistics mean nothing

Vikings' defense tough despite ranking in NFL

HOUSTON (AP) — When the No. 3-ranked rushing team in the National Football League meets the 23rd-rated team against the run, you've got a mismatch in the offing for Super Bowl VIII, right?

Wrong, according to no less an authority than fullback Larry Csonka, the sledgehammer in Miami's awesome ground game.

"I guarantee you Minnesota won't look like the 23rd team against the rush in the Super Bowl," said the 6-foot-2, 235-pound Csonka, who gained 1,003 yards in 1973, shredding enemy lines with his bulldozer runs.

Csonka, who has been battling the flu this week, said the Vikings have a "tough defense. You can't use full season statistics as a guide because the only stat that means anything is how they played in crucial games. And that was good."

"So often Minnesota was way ahead by the second half and just let the other team run while they played prevent football, keeping the other team from breaking the long one."

A good example in support of Csonka's theory is that the Vikings allowed tough-running Dallas only 90 yards in the National Conference title game two weeks ago.

Csonka, who scored three touchdowns against Oakland in the American Conference championship game, said Minnesota is the hardest tackling team he has faced.

"Have you ever had Carl Eller or Alan Page tackle you?" Csonka asked about two members of Minnesota's "Purple Gang" front four.

Csonka said linebacker Roy Winston put the hardest tackle on him he can remember in a regular season game against the Vikings last year.

"It was a devastating tackle," Csonka remembered. "I was stretched out on the sidelines and Coach (Don) Shula told me 'You're not hurt. What I told him back is something you can't print. I'm not to the point where I'm so dedicated I'll play with a broken back.'"

Winston, middle linebacker Jeff Siemon and Wally Hilgenberg are sure tacklers.

Winston said, "I think the way to stop them is simply to have a total team defense that puts out and beats each man in front of him."

"You go into every football game, no matter who you're playing, to shut off the running game and make a team pass."

Siemon said, "My biggest concern is with Csonka because most of his plays will be in my area. I'm concerned with (Mercury) Morris in a collective way because I think he can do more things to hurt you than Csonka. He can break the big play where Csonka's gonna get his five, six, seven, 10 yards."

2:20 remaining in the game, pulling Los Angeles into a tie with Chicago.

Owners reject sale of Padres

CHICAGO (AP) — At a costly risk, the National League still is playing the hidden ball trick with the San Diego Padre franchise.

With spring training just around the corner, the NL's ownership rejected Wednesday proposed purchase of the Padres by a nine-member Los Angeles group headed by horse race executive Majorie Everett.

It marked the fourth time in five months the NL bosses failed to do anything about helping financially strapped owner C. Arnholt Smith unload his five-year-old Padre franchise.

League President Chub Feeney made a hurried and almost furtive short announcement after Wednesday's 3½-hour meeting drew another blank.

"The National League declined approval of the proposed sale of the San Diego franchise to a group represented by attorney Neil Papiano," Feeney announced. That meant thumbs down on the Everett faction.

Feeney wound up his brief statement with: "The league plans to explore and consider other possibilities in the near future."

It was reported the dissenting vote was 9-3, with only Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs; Horace Stoneham of the San Francisco Giants; and Buzze Bava of the Padres casting for the Everett group.

The action Wednesday left the door ajar for a long-wooing

Washington group headed by Joe Danzansky, but more likely left the Padres in San Diego for at least one more season under a possible new local purchasing group, or even under league operation.

One league official said the next meeting would be held within two weeks and that a bid might be considered from a revised lineup of the original Los Angeles group.

The action Wednesday appeared a rebuff of Mrs. Everett, majority stockholder in the Hollywood (Calif.) Park race track, who was a government witness in a Chicago racebook scandal.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn appeared before the Wednesday meeting, but did not attend the session. Kuhn disclosed his office had investigated the Los Angeles group and submitted a report to NL owners at baseball's winter meetings in Houston in December.

Bowl teams may be picked earlier

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association made major changes at its 68th annual convention and admitted some measures could create future problems.

At Wednesday's final business session, the NCAA delegates voted to eliminate the mid-November date that major football bowls games were supposed to await before issuing invitations. Now the bowls, except those involving conference champions, could make their matchups early in the season.

"This new rule appears on the surface to be permissive but, in fact, it's what's prevailing now," said Bob James, commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference and chairman of the NCAA Extra Events Committee.

Earlier in the convention, a proposal narrowly passed which will allow athletes to play professionally in one sport and on the college level in any others.

"It's modernization," said

NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers, "an accommodation to the individual athlete. It does raise many problems, however."

Southern California football star Anthony Davis, one of several athletes who could take advantage of the change, said Wednesday, "It sounds like fun."

But Davis, the football half-back who also excels in baseball, added, "If I played pro baseball, would pro football draft me?"

Cincinnati proves victory over Louisville no fluke

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
You can't believe everything you read in the newspapers, but you can believe the things that you see on a basketball court.

In so many words, Gale Catlett expressed those sentiments after watching his Cincinnati Bearcats beat the 11th-ranked Louisville Cardinals 77-70 in college basketball Wednesday night.

"We got tired of all that junk in the newspapers about that win in Louisville being a fluke," said the Cincinnati coach, referring to a 65-58, opening-day triumph over the tough Missouri Valley Conference team.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 5 North Carolina beat Clemson 102-90; No. 13 Wisconsin trimmed Ohio 69-68 and No. 15 South Carolina crushed Lafayette 84-63.

Lloyd Batts scored 20 points to lead Cincinnati's upset victory over a team that's supposed to win the MVC this year. Batts had 14 points before intermission, leading Cincinnati to a 35-31 halftime lead.

Walter Davis scored 27 points and Bobby Jones added 25, leading North Carolina over Clemson. Those two helped the Tar Heels open a 49-33 halftime lead and then improved the margin to 81-63 with about seven minutes remaining.

Wisconsin lost a 10-point lead, then came back in the final minutes to beat Ohio with the help of twins Kim and Kerry Hughes.

Alex English got a crucial rebound and then a steal, starting a late surge that helped South Carolina defeat Lafayette.

Wesleyan suffers first loss

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Kansas Wesleyan, which started the week with a perfect 4-0 record in Kansas Conference basketball competition, has been defeated.

The Coyotes lost Wednesday night 93-69 to McPherson.

McPherson's Glenn Anderson made 24 points but scoring honors went to Clyde Murrell of Kansas Wesleyan, who sank 27. Wesleyan has a 4-1 conference record and McPherson 3-2.

Elsewhere in Kansas, Emporia State downed Washburn 84-75. Pittsburg State lost to Drury 87-86. Kansas Newman edged Bethel 80-76. Bethany tripped St. Mary of the Plains 77-58.

In other Missouri games, Culver-Stockett defeated Illinois College 89-83. Tarkio walloped Peru, Neb., State 103-36. Blackburn, Ill., beat Harris, Mo. Teachers 66-55, and Westminster's game at Missouri Rolla was postponed until Feb. 14 by the storm.

Elsewhere in college basketball, it was George Washington 74, West Virginia 71 in overtime; Navy 56, Georgetown 55; Pitt 90, Davidson 63; Brown 102, Yale 90 and Colorado State 63, Utah State 61.

Tigers wait for Hawaii and weather

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Hawaii, the weather willing, will invade Missouri tonight for an intersectional basketball game.

Hawaii, 20th ranked, has an 11-0 record and has defeated two teams, Purdue and South Alabama, which hold decisions over the Tigers of the Big Eight Conference.

Missouri, 8-3, will not be at full strength since Steve Dangos will see only limited action. Dangos has missed three games with a knee injury.

The game will be the last before the Bengals open Big Eight play Saturday afternoon at home against Iowa State.

All other conference teams are idle tonight.

Kansas State got in its last licks Wednesday night before the league opens Saturday and easily defeated Northeast Missouri State 76-54. The Wildcats led 45-26 at the half.

K-State, 8-4, had Gene McVey back in the lineup for the first time in more than a month. McVey topped the Wildcats with 15 points, and freshman Dean Harris contributed 13.

Cards, Royals first picks are pitchers

NEW YORK (AP) — The Kansas City Royals and the St. Louis Cardinals each selected 13 players in the January portion of baseball's free agent draft Wednesday.

The Royals' top choice in the regular phase was Ken Souza, a left-handed pitcher at San Mateo, Calif., Junior College.

St. Louis' first selection was John Urra, a right-handed pitcher from Norwalk, Calif.

The other Kansas City selections in the regular phase:

The Royals' secondary phase selections:

David Hasbach, right-handed pitcher, Miami, Ohio, University; Xavier Dixon, outfielder, St. Mary's Calif. College; Daniel Walker, right-handed pitcher, Malone College, Canton, Ohio, and Steve Wotcock, outfielder, Dana College, Blair, Neb.

The other regular phase selections by St. Louis:

William Simpson, shortstop, Long Beach City College, Long Beach, Calif.; James Weil, pitcher, Grandview Junior College, Des Moines, Iowa; Michael Stone, Waterdown, Conn.

Calvin Barr, catcher-outfielder, Broward Community College, Miami, Fla.

Detroit Pistons romp over Lakers, 123-94

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

The Detroit Pistons were looking ahead and the Los Angeles Lakers were looking behind, which also describes their relative positions in Wednesday night's National Basketball Association game.

"We're just looking ahead to the playoffs," said Detroit Coach Ray Scott after the Pistons romped to their widest margin ever over the Lakers in beating Los Angeles 123-94. "We set a goal to win 50 ball games and that's what we're trying to do."

"Maybe last night's game had something to do with it," suggested Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman, whose club had lost to the Bullets Tuesday night, ending a five-game winning streak.

Certainly Bob Lanier had something to do with it. The bulky Detroit center scored 32 points and grabbed 20 rebounds to help the Pistons to their fourth victory in five games.

"We had a game we could have won and should have won and we let it slip away," added Sharman, referring to the game with Capital. "It may have been something of a letdown."

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Boston Celtics crushed the Chicago Bulls 106-89; the Philadelphia 76ers dropped the Cleveland Cavaliers 90-86; the Phoenix Suns trimmed the Houston Rockets 105-101; and the Seattle SuperSonics downed the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 100-96.

Celtics 106, Bulls 89 — John Havlicek and Don Nelson sank the Bulls by leading a third-quarter Boston surge. Havlicek, 23 points shy of becoming the eighth player in NBA history to score 2,000 points, had 10 points in the surge.

76ers 90, Cavaliers 86 — Steve Mix' 24 points helped Philadelphia end a dry spell against Cleveland that had stretched to almost two years. It was the Cavaliers' seventh straight loss.

Suns 105, Rockets 101 — Charlie Scott led a late-game surge that ended a Houston rally and carried Phoenix to the victory over Houston.

SuperSonics 100, Kings 96 — Kennedy McIntosh sank four free throws and Don Watts added three more in the final 33 seconds, enabling Seattle to beat Kansas City-Omaha.

Burl Wood accepts position at UTEP

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Burl Wood, head football coach at New Mexico Military Institute for the last year, has been named linebacker coach at the University of Texas at El Paso by Coach Gil Bartosh.

After graduation from West Texas State in 1966, Wood, 29, signed a professional contract with the British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League. The following year, he signed with the Boston Patriots.

In 1969 at West Texas State he was a linebacker coach. In 1970 he went to NMII as defensive coordinator for two years before becoming head coach last year.

Stars 115, Conquistadors 112 — Willie Wise scored 35 points and Zelmo Beatty hit a game-winning foul shot with 31 seconds left, leading Utah over San Diego.

It was the Stars' eighth straight victory and boosted their lead in the ABA West to three games.

Rockets 119, Squires 103 — Ralph Simpson had 23 points

USC shortstop is first to go in baseball draft

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer
The Texas Rangers didn't take very long to satisfy Roy Smalley, Jr., the No. 1 choice in baseball's free agent draft.

The Rangers picked the young shortstop from the University of Southern California to open the draft and then interrupted the telephonic hookup after the first round to announce his signing.

That was no small accomplishment for the Rangers. Smalley, son of a former major leaguer and nephew of Montreal Manager Gene Mauch, had been selected four times in previous drafts, once by his uncle's club, but always chose to continue his education instead of turning professional.

But Smalley stayed out of school last September to be eligible for the winter draft and the Rangers snapped him up.

"I'm very pleased and excited," said the 21-year-old infielder, adding that if he played baseball as well as his father, "I'll call it a good career."

Smalley, Sr. spent 10 years in the majors as a shortstop for the Chicago Cubs, Milwaukee

101 committee to honor Jordan

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Leroy Jordan, middle linebacker for the Dallas Cowboys, will be honored Jan. 18 by the Kansas City 101 Committee as the National Football Conference defensive player of the 1973 season.

The selection committee is composed of sports writers and broadcasters throughout the nation. Jordan won out by a narrow vote over defensive tackle Alan Page of the Minnesota Vikings.

Chosen by their North teammates Wednesday were All-American quarterback David Jaynes of Kansas on offense and linebacker Ed O'Neil of Penn State on defense.

The South players elected Arizona State quarterback Danny White as offensive captain and linebacker Wayne Bryant of Tennessee State as defensive captain.

Meanwhile, North Coach Mike McCormack of the Philadelphia Eagles and South Coach Don McCafferty of the Detroit Lions cut back on the tempo of practice.

Penn State running back John Cappelletti, the Heisman

Braves and Philadelphia Phillies.

"I'm flattered," said the father. "It's an ego trip for me just to be compared to my son."

Another proud father was Harding Peterson, director of scouting for the Pittsburgh Pirates, who selected his son, Eric, a left-handed pitcher at Gulf Coast Community College, in the fourth round of the Class A draft.

"You'll have to explain why he wasn't No. 1," kidded Johnson of the commissioner's staff, who ran the draft.

Two other relatives of familiar major leaguers were drafted in the first round. San Diego picked infielder Thomas Ashford of Covington, Tenn., a brother-in-law of Cincinnati infielder Phil Gagliano, and California chose Larry Howser, a shortstop from West Palm Beach, Fla., and brother of New York Yankee Coach Dick Howser.

In the secondary phase, dealing with players previously drafted but not signed, the top selection belonged to Kansas City which chose right-handed pitcher David Hasbach of Miami University of Ohio.

Later in the secondary phase, San Francisco picked right-handed pitcher Cliff Mays of Portland, Ore. There was some confusion on the spelling of the player's name but Jack Schwarz, the Giants' farm director who was making the Giants' selections, cleared it up in a hurry.

"M-a-y-s," he said, "like Willie." A total of 257 players were selected in the regular and secondary phases of the draft compared to 251 in last year's winter draft.

Jaynes named co-captain of North Senior squad

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Two flashy quarterbacks and two rugged linebackers have been chosen as co-captains for the North and South teams in the 25th Senior Bowl football game Saturday.

Chosen by their North teammates Wednesday were All-American quarterback David Jaynes of Kansas on offense and linebacker Ed O'Neil of Penn State on defense.

The South players elected Arizona State quarterback Danny White as offensive captain and linebacker Wayne Bryant of Tennessee State as defensive captain.

Meanwhile, North Coach Mike McCormack of the Philadelphia Eagles and South Coach Don McCafferty of the Detroit Lions cut back on the tempo of practice.

Penn State running back John Cappelletti, the Heisman

Trophy winner, suffered a cut under his right eye in practice Wednesday which took five stitches to close.

"He'll be all right to play, but he will probably have a black eye," a team physician said.

Senior Bowl officials picked lineman Mitch Sutton of Kansas to replace defensive lineman Lucius Selmon of Oklahoma, who is hobbled with a pulled hamstring muscle.

The game is a sellout at Ladd Stadium, which seats 40,646. It will be televised nationally.

Members of the winning squad will receive $1,500 each and the losers $1,250. The top offensive and defensive player on each squad also will be presented an additional $2,500 and the man chosen as the game's outstanding player will be awarded a 1974 car.

Some negative-double devotees carry it forward to cover all overcalls. Others go through a fairly sensible two or three-spade limit. Of course, those who say they double any bid negatively, point out that the higher the bid the more likely that partner will leave it in. These high-level negative doubles certainly live up to the game, although it is doubtful which side benefits from them. North and South were playing negative doubles through three spades so when West made his preemptive three-spade overcall of South's opening club bid North stuck in a negative double. Not that we should really blame negative doubles for his action. North had barely enough for a negative double at the one level. His three-level double had to be close to suicidal. On the other hand if he didn't have that toy to play with he would have passed. West would have played three spades and been down one after losing two clubs, two diamonds and a spade. As it was, South bid four hearts in response to his partner's request. When it got around to East, he doubled. West opened the ace of spades and continued with the queen which East ruffed. After this start East still made two trump tricks and a club for a nice 500-point profit.

A — Just bid six spades. Your partner should still bid seven if he holds the queen of spades in addition to his aces and kings.
TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding four spades your partner jumps to five diamonds over your three spades. What do you do now?

Bond ponders free trip question

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond is considering what to do about a free trip to Europe that his insurance superintendent, Edward G. Farmers, was preparing to take this April.

Farmer has offered an explanation of his actions in writing to Bond, a governor's aide said.

It was reported Tuesday that Farmer could go abroad for free if he lined up enough private insurance agents to join him on the tour.

Bond has prohibited state employees from accepting favors in their positions, or from using their positions for personal gain.

Farmer mailed 800 letters, at state expense, to promote the tour, which is sponsored by a private non-profit organization that specializes in tours to exchange information with foreign experts.

Each agent would have to pay his own way, at $1,800 per person. Farmer said if he could get 38 persons going, his trip would be free. "But I don't think I'll get 38 persons to go," he said.

He said if 38 did sign up, "I'll ask the governor if I should take it."

The 22-day trip would include England, Germany, Switzerland and Russia.

It seems there are quite a few things you can't do with an automobile, such as drive without gas, find parking places and ford a stream in most cases. But a bike doesn't need gas, nor does it take up much parking space and just about anybody can carry one across a stream as this Miami, Fla., man does while out for a Sunday ride. (UPI)

Campaign reform is facing Congress twice

By WALTER R. MEARS

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Campaign reform is an issue Congress will be facing twice this year: first at the Capitol, then at the polls.

Legislation to control political fund raising and limit campaign spending is on House and Senate agendas. New reform proposals are likely by spring, all in response to the Watergate scandals.

At the same time, political ethics and financing loom as significant issues in the coming congressional election campaign. Public opinion surveys show declining confidence in government. One poll, commissioned by a Senate committee, said that situation has reached crisis proportions.

This comes in a year that will see most House members, and some senators, run for reelection. So in acting on campaign finance bills, they will be dealing with measures likely to affect immediately their own political activities.

So far, the pace of reform has been slow, despite the pressures created by Watergate. The Senate passed a stringent campaign finance bill six months ago and sent it to the House, where it has been in committee ever since. No House action is due before mid-March.

Another measure, to switch from the traditional system of collecting political contributions to one of government-financed federal election campaigns passed the Senate but was rebuffed in the House.

The Nixon administration opposed that plan and a scaled-down version which would have covered presidential campaigns beginning in 1976 was scuttled by a late-session filibuster.

The Senate Rules Committee has promised to come up with a new public finance bill by Feb. 21, but prospects for enactment are uncertain.

The key bill in 1974 is likely to be the final version of the one the Senate passed in July of 1973. It would limit campaign spending to the equivalent of 10 cents for each eligible voter in primaries and 15 cents in general elections. Those ceilings would cover congressional as well as presidential campaigns.

In addition, the Senate bill would limit contributions so that an individual could give no more than $3,000 to the campaign of a candidate for federal office. An additional $3,000 could be given to the candidate's primary campaign.

Nobody could give more than $25,000 in any year to all candidates for federal office.

And the measure would ban cash contributions of over $50.

The bill would create a bipartisan commission for enforcement of its terms and of financial reporting requirements that took effect in 1972.

Until Watergate, the major emphasis on campaign reform had been on disclosure of the sources of political money. The 1972 law required the reporting of all contributions over $100.

Lunch reimbursements are increased again

By BRIAN B. KING

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second time in less than two weeks, the reimbursements for the National School Lunch Program have been increased.

A new law mandating various increases was signed Nov. 7 by President Nixon, and Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz put them into effect Dec. 28—for the preceding six months.

Effective with today's Federal Register, the government will be paying 5 per cent more, to account—as the law requires every Jan. 1 and July 1—for changes in the "food away from home" column of the Consumer Price Index. Since July 1, those prices have increased 5.126 per cent.

The new rates, compared with the Dec. 28 adjustment spelled out in the law and congressional conference committee report, and the level during the past school year, are:

All lunches—10.5 cents each until June 30, 10 cents from July 1, 1973, to Dec. 31; 8 cents last school year.

Additional reimbursement to schools for each free lunch served to poverty-level children—47.25 cents, 45 cents, 40 cents.

Additional reimbursement for each reduced-price lunch served, for pupils with family incomes between the poverty level and $7,200—37.25 cents, 35 cents, 30 cents.

An estimated 85 per cent of the nation's schools participate in the lunch program.

The department also announced new, higher reimbursement schedules for the corollary school breakfast program, which was not increased by the Dec. 28 regulations: up 0.5 cents to 8½ cents for all breakfasts, plus an additional 15.75 cents for reduced-price breakfasts and 21 cents for free breakfasts.

The previous payments, in addition to the basic 8 cents, had been 15 cents and 20 cents for the reduced-price and free lunches.

States can adjust the basic lunch reimbursement up to 16½ cents under the new rules—again, a half-cent increase—and the total per-lunch reimbursement in special cases can now go as high as 62.75 cents for reduced-price lunches and 72.75 cents for free lunches.

The maximums remain at 40 and 45 cents for reduced-price and free breakfasts.

Local school officials told Congress last fall, before the new law passed, that record jumps in food prices were pushing lunch costs up by as much as 24 cents per meal. They were raising their per lunch prices by between a nickel and a dime.

A Senate survey of about 35 states showed the average cost of producing a lunch this fall was 61.7 cents.

Two children die in pre-dawn blaze

FREDERICKTOWN, Mo.

(AP) — Authorities were still trying to determine the cause of a mobile home fire that claimed the lives of two small children near this southeast Missouri community Wednesday.

Devonna Kay Montgomery, 5, and her 13-month-old brother, Jesse, died when the blaze swept through the trailer home during the pre-dawn darkness, authorities said.

Jesse Montgomery, the children's father, was at work when the fire broke out, but his wife was reportedly in serious condition at a Fredericktown hospital from injuries she suffered in the blaze, police said.

The density of our sun is a little heavier than water, while white dwarf stars may be more than one million times as dense as the sun.

Production cutback at Ford plant

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Faced with a declining demand for bigger cars, the Ford Motor Co., joined General Motors Wednesday and announced layoffs and production cutbacks at its assembly plant here.

About 2,700 hourly employees will be furloughed for two weeks this month at Ford's Mercury assembly plant in north St. Louis County and then the afternoon shift at the plant will be indefinitely eliminated beginning Feb. 4, spokesman Robert Harner said.

"The reductions are designed to bring production into line with inventories," Harner explained. "The dealers have found they have a large enough supply of cars now."

Assembly operations at the plant, the only United States facility making the luxury Marquis and Monterey models, will be suspended the weeks beginning Jan. 14 and Jan. 28 with operations as usual during the week in between. The elimination of the second shift will affect about 1,300 hourly and 135 salaried employees.

Stockton's power more than expected

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Army Engineers reported Thursday that the new Stockton Lake in southwest Missouri came into full operation in 1973 and produced about five times as much power as they had expected.

Col. Peck said Stockton Lake also performed well in its flood control capacity. The dam is on the Sac River just east of Stockton and both arms of the lake reach almost half way to Springfield on the south.

"IT IS, UNQUESTIONABLY, THIS YEAR'S STYLE LEADER!"

That's not just our opinion. The November issue of Car and Driver magazine said this and other good things in picking Matador as "1974's Best Styled Car". Let us show you why Matador is this year's most talked-about intermediate.

GREAT VALUE...

Don't let Matador's great new styling scare you away. Because we're not going to "soak" you just because you want a good looking car. Take a look at this equipment—and another look at this low price tag . . . (list equipment).

AMC BUYER PROTECTION PLAN™

A unique, strong guarantee. When you buy a new 1974 or 1975 AMC (American Motors Corporation) car, you get the AMC Buyer Protection Plan. This plan is a guarantee of the car's condition and performance. It covers the car for 12 months or 10,000 miles, whichever comes first. All we require is that the car be properly maintained and that the owner be a resident of the United States. The plan is a great protection against the risk of a defective car. It's a plan that's worth the price of the car. It's a plan that's worth the price of the car. It's a plan that's worth the price of the car.
